UNIKA DI on Tour with The Guilty Men

Neil “Coss the Boss” Cossar’s latest gig is as guitar-slinger of The Guilty Men - a supergroup comprising the cream of Northwest UK’s musician’s musicians. Formed in conjunction with with the legendary Clive Gregson, the band has a formidable depth of talent, including 10cc’s Paul Burgess on drums and Barclay James Harvest’s Jez Smith and Craig Fletcher on keyboards and bass respectively. While touring their debut album in small theatres right across the UK, Coss experienced issues with his acoustic guitar. Coss explains: ”While all the theatre PAs sounded great, I kept having intermittent faults on the locally-provided DI boxes and so I decided to carry my own."

“I auditioned a number of different units and the UNiKA Pro range sounded the most musical and fitted perfectly on my pedal board. Since I insisted on using my own DI I have had no problems with reliability and the great sound has meant the house engineers have been more than happy to go along with the change.” Mick Brophy, Business Development Manager at Mega Audio adds: “All UNiKA DIs are designed for the road and feature great-sounding transformers.
