

HH Audio promotes Kyle Watson

HH Audio, part of the Headstock Group, announces the promotion of Kyle Watson to the position of Divisional Sales Manager Europe. Kyle will be responsible for the growth of HH Audio in the territory and will work closely with the company's European partners, leading the release of exciting new ranges and helping to determine what products should be next in development.

Headstock Group CEO James Laney comments: "Having started at Headstock just over two years ago, Kyle quickly proved his capability in technical support and after-sales duties. His diligence, ambition, and knowledge of audio products prompted the opportunity to include him in our HH Audio product development committee, where he quickly became project manager for the development of several new products due for release in 2025.

"Given that he has spent the last year focused on bringing these important new HH Audio products to life, it seem fitting to give him the firsthand opportunity to bring them into the European market." Kyle Watson adds: "I'm excited to be taking on my new responsibilities and meeting and working with our European partners. With a range of new HH Audio products about to be launched and ISE just around the corner, the timing couldn't be better. I'm very much looking forward to the challenge!"

Kyle will be available for appointments at ISE, Barcelona on the HH Audio Stand
