More than 2,200 professionals poured through the Dampfdom at Motorworld Munich on March 4 and 5. Around 60 exhibitors representing over 100 brands from the entertainment technology industry had invited the community to LEaT X in southern Germany. Visitors experienced a wealth of new tech, exciting presentations, demos and hands-on workshops.

To kick things off, the organizers hosted two guided tours the day before, showcasing some of Munich's technical highlights: At Haus7 • Studio at Bavaria Film, guests explored cutting-edge audio and imaging technology, while at SAP Garden, one of Europe's most advanced multi-purpose arenas, they went behind the scenes. Back at the Dampfdom at Motorworld Munich, LEaT X offered a full program of expert talks, in-depth workshops and engaging demos. Topics included the latest developments around Milan, Auracast and Dante. And there was more: adjacent areas were covered as well, with sessions on sales, communication, wireless frequencies and the use of media servers.

Exhibitors and visitors praised the short distances and the countless opportunities for in-depth conversations in a relaxed atmosphere. "Intense and full of energy, I'm really happy to be here," says Michaela Hirsch, Global Mounts Group. "LEaT X is a great opportunity to build new partnerships and reconnect with long-standing contacts. It creates the perfect setting for deep conversations and real exchange," explains Christian Reiss from Rent-All. "We're thrilled - with the visitors and the location. The combination of LEaT con in Hamburg and LEaT X in Munich is also perfect for us. It allows us to reach customers from Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Next time, we'll definitely be back," says Sebastian Wittrock from L-Acoustics.

With more than 2,200 professionals, LEaT X has set a new record. Once again, the event proved that it's not just about size, but about character: closeness instead of anonymity, real peer-to-peer exchange, and content with substance. The industry will meet again at LEaT con 26, taking place October 6-8, 2026 at Hamburg Messe.
