

IK Multimedia ReSing Session Singers Showcase

IK Multimedia, an innovator in music production technology, today announces the launch of the ReSing Session Singers Showcase, a new platform that allows producers, songwriters, and creators to elevate their music by hiring top session singers. The update also introduces 7 new professional ReSing models, expanding the growing catalog to 65 singers and instruments available for voice transformation.

ReSing is a leading voice replacement solution powered by ethical AI, delivering high-quality, professional results while ensuring the artists behind the voices are properly compensated. Anytime, anywhere, users can audition and hire the voice that inspires them through ReSing's seamless Showcase interface. Each singer is available through a Session, similar to a real studio collaboration. For a one-time fee, users can hire a specific voice for a limited project duration, with no subscriptions or automatic renewals. During a Session, music can be created, released, and distributed freely with full rights to the recordings—just like working with an actual session singer.

Durga McBroom, renowned for her years touring as a live backing vocalist with Pink Floyd, leads the launch of the Session Singers Showcase. Her voice brings unmistakable musical character, emotional depth, and decades of recording history into modern productions. All artists featured in the Session Singers Showcase have recorded their voices using ReSing's built-in modeler and are participating with full consent and clear compensation, reinforcing IK Multimedia's commitment to ethical AI development that respects performers and supports creators.

The Session Singers Showcase begins with a diverse group of professional vocalists covering pop, rock, soul, and singer-songwriter styles, with more voices and languages in development. With ReSing Free, users can get started immediately
