

Moises Lyric Transcription & Chord Extraction

Universal Audio Inc. (UA), a worldwide leader in audio production tools, today announced a new integration with Moises, bringing Lyric Transcription and Chord Extraction directly into LUNA, UA's award-winning DAW. The integration makes it easier to follow lyrics, understand chord progressions, and build new parts from existing performances - all without leaving a session.

Released in 2020, LUNA was the first DAW to offer authentic analog channel strips, summing, and tape extensions from Neve, API, Studer, and Ampex. With today's announcement, LUNA continues to evolve as a musician-focused DAW, combining professional recording tools with smart features designed to remove the barriers between inspiration and a finished record.

Available in UA's fully equipped LUNA Studio, the new Moises-powered tools let musicians transcribe vocals and identify chords directly in their projects. Lyric Transcription automatically creates a time-aligned lyric browser, while Chord Extraction detects chords from audio and maps them to LUNA's Chord Track, allowing users to add new parts with ARA plug-ins like Celemony Tonalic. Together, the tools make it faster to learn a song, build new arrangements, or follow along during a session.

"Great songs start with ideas, and the best tools help musicians bring those ideas to life," said Bill Putnam Jr., CEO of Universal Audio. "In this new era for LUNA, we're making it easier than ever to capture those ideas and follow them wherever they take you... and Moises' chord and lyric tools are a natural fit for that."

"Learning a song, mapping its chords, and building on it should happen in one place," said Geraldo Ramos, CEO and Co-Founder of Moises. "With Universal Audio, we're bringing our Lyric Transcription and Chord Extraction tools directly into LUNA, so musicians can move from a reference track to creating new parts without interrupting their session."

Moises-powered Lyric Transcription and Chord Extraction are available with LUNA Studio, priced at $199 USD. LUNA Studio is also included with UAD Spark Studio, available for $19.99/month or $149.99/year.
