Jet Stream Audio New UK Audient Console Distributor

Audient announces its partnership with Jet Stream Audiofor the sales and support of mixing consoles in the UK. Based in London, Jet Stream is headed up by Bryn Wildish (pictured above), former UK Market Manager for Audient. Bryn says, “Jet Stream is proud to distribute the Audient ASP range of consoles in the UK. Having worked with Audient for nearly a decade previously, and overseen the installation of hundreds of their consoles around the country, this was an easy fit for both of us. It provides a consistent and easy transition for Audient customers. Jet Stream and Audient share a customer-first ethic and we genuinely hold Audient, their products and the team in the highest esteem. I look forward to a renewed and ongoing partnership.”

Audient CEO Simon Sinclair says: “When approached by Jet Stream Audio, the decision to collaborate was straightforward. Bryn brings a wealth of experience and deep knowledge of Audient products, as well as a strong understanding of the UK market. His direct involvement in the specification and installation of numerous Audient consoles makes this partnership a natural fit for both parties. “We are confident that this collaboration will strengthen our presence in the region, and we look forward to working closely with Jetstream to support our exclusive dealer

To complement Audient, Jet Stream Audio has also partnered with new and upcoming brands to help bring new products to market, and is currently in discussion with more established industry partners to help get their products into the hands of musicians, producers and educators. More information is available at on the website below where a list of authorised UK dealers will be available soon.
