

Nomad Factory 80's Spaces v2

Nomad Factory and Plugivity Distribution announce the release of 80's Spaces v2 – this upgrade brings major improvements, full Mac and Windows OS compatibility including "Apple's M series" silicon chips and amazing new GUIs to this unique '80s "vibes" reverb plug-in – free for current users and available as of the 6th of September.

After years of hard work, the development and distribution teams at Nomad Factory / Plugivity, are thrilled to share the latest version of their flagship product: 80's Spaces. It has been upgraded to version 2 and is now available from the Nomad Factory website and Pro Audio resellers worldwide.

The development of 80's Spaces was initiated by Plugivity CEO Eric Nolot and late friend Bernie Torelli of Nomad Factory. They joined forces with Sabino Canonne (MoReVoX) who brought his expertise in convolution and unique Impulse Response development. The joint effort paid off as 80's Spaces is now one of the most used reverb units in the professional audio production industry.

Not only has the product been greatly improved, but the entire framework has been completely revamped to be fully compatible with the latest operating systems such as Windows 11 and macOS 12 Monterey (with native M series silicon chip compatibility).

"Nomad Factory users have been eagerly waiting for this. This upgrade will affect the entire Nomad Factory product line over the course of the next few months", says Eric Nolot, CEO at Plugivity / Nomad Factory.

Nomad Factory Announce 80's Spaces v2 with Reverbs from the '80s Era

"It has been very challenging for myself and the development team at Plugiversity to take over the Nomad factory brand, a few years back, when owner and CEO Bernie Torelli sadly past away. Our developers have been hard at work to port, literally, millions of lines of codes to our modern framework assuring backward compatibility, and FREE upgrades for the next decades. We hope to have all Nomad Factory products ported to our new framework as soon as we possibly can" adds Eric.

Current owners can now download the latest version of 80's Spaces (v2), for FREE, from the Nomad Factory website. They will immediately notice the clean "notarized" installers and the very slick new GUIs that now come in a funky purple background or a very "classic" deep grey. These settings are now available from a convenient preference menu along with other useful settings.

This new version includes 12 reference reverb models (5 added with v2), 250 high quality convolution impulse responses (80 added with v2), and 510 well organized presets (110 added with v2). It now also includes a "Color" Option a Tilt EQ and a new Gate mode.

80's Spaces is available as of today at the introductory price of ONLY $39 (LIST $179) until September 30, 2022.
